Fostering Excellence in Biostatistics Workshop

March 2027 | TBD
Event Check-In: TBD

The Fostering Excellence in Biostatistics Workshop is a day-long workshop that has been held at the ENAR Spring Meeting since 1999. Its goal is to encourage more quantitatively skilled early-career scholars from broad-ranging backgrounds to pursue degrees in Biostatistics and foster their active participation and contributions to the field. Workshop activities include career and graduate school panels, roundtable discussions, breakout sessions on scientific writing and R coding, and many opportunities for networking and outreach. The Workshop has primarily provided travel support for undergraduate students to attend, while including high school students, current graduate students in (bio)statistics programs, as well as faculty members who primarily mentor high school and undergraduate students. We encourage applicants from a wide range of backgrounds to apply for the workshops, e.g. different locations of the country, types of universities (e.g., private, state, community colleges, liberal arts), economic and educational backgrounds, as well as academic fields of study (e.g., biology, mathematics, public health, computer science). The Workshop has become so popular that for the past several years demand has well exceeded available spaces of approximately 100 per offering.

EARLY CAREER WORKSHOP SERIES

Monday, March 15 - Wednesday, March 17, 2027

ENAR is bringing back the Junior Researchers Workshop in a new, modern hybrid format titled the Early Career Workshop Series! We're updating the program to have four tracks, covering Industry, Government, Academia Methodology Researcher, and Academia Team Scientist Collaborator. At the ENAR Spring Meeting, the first Early Career Workshop Series cohort will attend three workshop-specific sessions covering broad topics such as communicating your work and your value, developing and maintaining your network, and navigating a new environment with an early eye towards promotion and success. After the Spring Meeting, the cohort will together participate in virtual programming. We're excited to reintroduce this opportunity for our early-career members and to continue to build the ENAR community.

ENAR

Because the Eastern North American Region of the International Biometric Society is a non-profit organization, sponsorships are a critical part of both the Spring Meeting and the continuity of the organization itself.

Meeting sponsorships allow us to provide affordable rates and support the administrative costs associated with running the organization, like this website, for example.

Sponsorships also gain your organization great visibility!

Your support is very important and much appreciated!
